Meeting set for parties in bias case

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Illinois Fair Employment Practices Commission (IFEPC) is arranging a January meeting for both parties in the Canut-Amoros sex discrimination case to discuss evidence to be presented without challenge at a new hearing.

John W. Huffman, University legal counsel, said the IFEPC contacted SIU this week about setting Jan. 19 to 23 for a joint meeting. He said the IFEPC is in the process of trying to contact the attorney for Marrisca Canut-Amoros to see if the dates for the meeting are acceptable.

The IFEPC granted SIU a new hearing in the case Oct. 15 and directed the administrative law judge to encourage the parties to agree on as much evidence as possible to shorten the length of the new hearing.

"I have a feeling there's not going to be a whole lot (that both sides can agree on)," Huffman said, "At least we won't have to worry about foundation evidence."

Foundation evidence is proof of the authenticity of documents introduced as evidence.

"The commission hopes we can do it in three days but told us to set aside five," Huffman said, "We said we (SIU) would cooperate in any way we can."

The IFEPC has not indicated when the hearing will be held but Huffman said he expects it to be held in Carbondale 30 to 60 days after the meeting to agree on evidence.

The University requested a new hearing last July after the IFEPC reassigned the case to a new hearing examiner who had not heard the testimony at the original hearing.

Canut-Amoros filed sex discrimination charges against SIU in 1971 on both the state and federal level. She charged that because of her sex she was denied equal pay, was denied a research award or teaching assignment in the summer of 1971, was denied changes in her sabbatical leave and that her resignation from the School of Engineering and Technology was used to deprive her of SIU employment. Canut-Amoros now resides in Spain.

Old man winter

Harsh, cold winds are bringing the low rolling, leaden clouds of winter back to the Southern Illinois area. The cold front moved in Thursday bringing an end to the pleasant Indian summer area residents had been enjoying. The weekend temperatures are predicted to be cold, but the skies should clear. (Staff photo by Bob Ringham)

F-Senate tenure policy delayed

By Lenore Sobota
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A revised tenure policy document being written by the Faculty Senate was delayed in committee because of disagreement over the wording of the due process clause.

Ruth Bauner, chairman of the Salary, Rank and Tenure Committee, said committee members have had difficulty agreeing on the final form of the section dealing with due process for tenured faculty members terminated because of a financial emergency.

Bauner declined comment on the specifics of the disagreement saying, "Any time you have a group of people on a committee, they all have individual viewpoints."

The document being written by the senate's eight-member committee covers much the same area as present Board of Trustees policy but in greater detail, Bauner said. The current policy does not spell out in any detail procedures to be followed when terminating tenured faculty members, she said.

The committee began revising the tenure document in December, 1974, but Bauner said a final draft will not be ready for senate action until spring semester.

"We had hoped to have the final document to the senate before the end of the semester, but work has moved more slowly than we had anticipated," Bauner explained.

A change in committee membership at the end of spring semester caused some of the delay, Bauner said.

"We had to go back over what we had done and explain it and redo some sections because of the change in committee members," she said.

Bauner said it would be "premature" to discuss any of the specifics contained in the new document until it is presented to the senate.

The committee's next meeting is Dec. 2, and Bauner said most of the discussion will center on resolving the differences of opinion on the due process procedures.

After the due process issue is resolved, Bauner said a lot of editing has to be done to clear up the inconsistencies in the document's language caused because several people wrote the various sections.

Once the document is approved by the senate it must go to the vice president for academic affairs, the president and the trustees for approval.

Safety board sets sidewalk priorities

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Safety Board will suggest to City Manager Carroll Fry that the sidewalks in Carbondale's inner city quadrant be given top priority in any sidewalk repair project.

The area covers the walks between West College and Rawlings Streets and University Avenue and West Elm Street.

The commission was unable to take definite action because quorum was not present.

The commission also wrote a tentative list of priorities for the city council to consider when a sidewalk repair program does begin.

"The city council needs to seriously consider a list of priorities and let the public know about it," said Board Commissioner Dale Ritzel.

The commission suggested that the first priority be repairing existing walks that are badly in need of repair. The commission also suggested building sidewalks around schools, on streets where there are no sidewalks and in areas with heavy children pedestrian traffic.

Tom Wells, public works civil engineer, said he feels that repair of the existing walks would be the most economical use of any project money.

Ritzel asked Wells to make a sidewalk appraisal through the Department of Public Works for the commission's January meeting.

CCHS seeks to balance '77 budget

By Linda Henson
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) District 165 Board of Education was urged at its meeting Thursday to adopt a 1976-77 budget that does not exceed revenues.

Melvin Spence, CCHS superintendent, read the recommendation at the board's semi-monthly meeting. The recommendation will be formally presented to the board at a later meeting when Spence presents the budget.

Spence read the recommendation in the form of an additional goal the board should consider. Spence said the district's financial underpinnings are very weak.

"We are living in this district way beyond our means," Spence said. "We are now into next year's revenue."

Spence said he would present the board with additional goals which he feels appropriate for the school district. He stressed that these objectives should be considered additional to the goals which are now being sought. In other action, board member Marvin Ott presented current data on Carbondale Special Education Cooperative. He said 78 students were enrolled in the program as of Nov. 1.

Ott said that 27 students from District 165 are in the program. Two of the students are bussed to the cooperative. The new program had to borrow materials and equipment from area institutions to get started, Ott said.

The board also accepted the three highest bids on used vehicles it had for sale. Bids of $411 for a half-ton Chevrolet truck, $426 for a 2½-ton truck and $162 for a Nash scooter were accepted. A flatbed scale life that received no bids will probably be sold as scrap.

The board moved unanimously that if the highest bidder does not come and get the vehicle 24 hours from the time he is notified, the second highest bidder will be given an opportunity.

In other board action:—The board questioned two items in the report of the ad hoc committee to study the 1974-75 audit. Spence said that the revolving fund will now be used as supplementary emergency fund and that the amount to be put in this fund will be arrived at later.

—The board officially hired Judith A. Crant, who has been working as the secretary for the business manager.

—Board members agreed that the class scan sheets in the continued report on class loads of less than 15 students were misleading and that information should be provided on the total teaching load and which bonafide sections have less than 15 students.

U.N. organization controls disease

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"The World Health Organization (WHO) is a part of the United Nations that works," said William Burrows, presently a part-time consultant to the organization and retired professor of microbiology at the University of Chicago.

Burrows spoke before a small SIU audience Thursday on "Control of Infectious Diseases on a World Scale by the United Nations."

The reason why WHO works is that there is a constant need for healthy environments and "the problem of infectious disease is a common enemy around which people unite," he said. "There are no national boundaries; the prevention and control of disease is an area in which we all agree."

Internally, WHO has a highly political structure, but this has no effect on the operation of the organization, he said.

A workable approach in controlling disease in lesser developed countries is to ask them about their problems, look at their problems, and tell them what has worked for others, Burrows said.

"The worst thing to do is to go in and tell people what to do. It just doesn't work," he said.

Burrows said standardization on an international basis is what makes WHO work.

The methods of standardization include a language which uses internationally accepted generic names. "To speak a common language, we need common names," he said. A coherence in research would not be possible without standardization, he said.

Money is provided to needy countries in such a way as to not restrict the research or the researcher, Burrows said. "Too often money provided by large organizations has strings attached, but WHO-funded research gives the researcher free reign to spend the money any way the researcher desires," he said.

Doctoral fellowships are an additional form of financial assistance for research through the World Health Organization.

Burrows said that it is improbable that any disease other than small pox could be completely eradicated, but most diseases can be controlled.

"Control of a disease is only possible if a significant percentage of the population is immunized," he said.

If graphed, an epidemic has a bell-shaped curve, he said. The disease spreads quickly but tapers off sharply after a majority of the population is inoculated, he explained.

"Measures applied to the disease depend on the natural history of the disease," he said. The transmission of a disease is usually the focal point of the control efforts.

A disease transmitted by an intermediate host, a carrier who is not himself afflicted, is controllable, but the control can not be lifted. Burrows said complete eradication of a disease transmitted this way is impossible.

A central core within the organization is to provide the study of the treatment of water supplies.

The lecture was supplemented with a slide presentation of certain rural areas in India that are adjacent to water bodies filled with cholera. The people do their washing, drinking and disposing together in one body of water.

Jackson County court delays honeymoon plans

By Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Higgins may have a long wait before they can begin their honeymoon.

Mr. Higgins, 26, was sentenced to four months' imprisonment in Jackson County Circuit Court Thursday by the same judge who married the couple on Monday.

Higgins was returned to his cell in the Jackson County Jail after the ceremony on Monday.

Higgins will have even more prison walls to look at because on Friday he is to be taken to the Menard Correctional Center at Chester for a parole violation hearing. Circuit Judge Richard Richman said.

Richman convicted, married and sentenced Higgins in that order.

Higgins was found guilty of theft from person, a misdemeanor.

The offense was committed while he was on parole. If the hearing decides he violated release conditions, he will be back in prison to serve the remainder of his sentence, according to Illinois law.

In addition to the jail time, Richman sentenced Higgins to three years' probation and ordered him to pay a $300 fine. The probation begins immediately and Higgins was given credit for the jail time he served awaiting trial.

Higgins' bride is the former Doris Foulkes, 27, New Era Road, Carbondale.

Higgins was found guilty by Richman in a Bench trial held in October. He was charged with robbery, theft from person and assault. The charge filed by Jackson County Assistant State's Attorney Larry Rippe said Higgins had robbed William Dover outside the LBJ Steakhouse, 119 N. Washington St., Carbondale, on July 30.

Richman dismissed the robbery and assault charges at the trial's conclusion.

Mine search to continue until SIU student found

By Scott G. Bandle
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Deep sea divers from Atlanta, Ga., and Miami, Fla., were flown in to help search for a missing SIU student in a flooded mine at Bonne Terre, Mo.

Search officials said the divers will be used to explore the deep water that is inaccessible to divers with ordinary freshwater equipment. The water in the mine reaches a depth of 300 feet.

Michael Sprenger, 19, a freshman from Crystal Lake, has been missing for a week after he had gone scuba diving with the Egyptian Divers Club in the Bonne Terre Lead Mine.

Another member of the club, John Katilius, 19, a freshman from Cicero, was found drowned Saturday after the search had begun.

Officials said Thursday that Sprenger is believed dead. Officials had earlier speculated that he might be alive in a large air pocket in the mine.

The five-level lead mine is a tourist attraction that opened the three flooded levels to scuba divers last summer. Officials said there are five miles of tunnels throughout the complex.

Bonne Terre police officer Larry Wilkinson said Friday that the searchers are presently determined to keep searching until Sprenger is found. Peter Carroll, an SIU physical education instructor and faculty advisor to the club, has remained at the site and is helping with the search.

Blood drive nets 1,287 pints

Exactly 1,287 pints of blood were collected this week at SIU in the Red Cross Blood Drive, 305 pints more than last years' total, said Debra Vermilye, coordinator of the Mobilization of Volunteer Effort (MOVE).

Involved in making this years' blood drive a success were the Inter-Greek Council, MOVE, the Arnold Air Force Society, the Rugby Club, Angel Flight, and the classes of Health 500,

"Community Organization for Health Education" and Journalism 341, "Public Relations", said Gail Luken, Inter-Greek council coordinator for the drive.

"That's fantastic," said Andy Brown, assistant professor of health education when he learned of the drive's success on Friday. Brown is the instructor of the health class which handled publicity and recruitment for the drive.

News Roundup

Marion escapee sentenced for armed robbery

WINNIPEG (AP) — Dennis Dale Hunter, an escapee from a U.S. federal prison in Marion, was sentenced Friday to seven years in penitentiary for the armed robbery of a Winnipeg book store.

Hunter earlier had pleaded guilty to the Oct. 30 holdup. In a statement read by Prosecutor Robert Maxwell, he also admitted to a restaurant holdup in Vancouver before taking a bus to Winnipeg.

Hunter was the last of five prisoners involved in the Oct. 10 prison escape to be arrested. He had been serving a 24-year sentence for kidnapping.

The court was told he entered Canada about Oct. 18 in Ontario, made way to Vancouver and boarded a bus to Winnipeg after escaping from a $75 restaurant holdup.

He took $119 from the bookstore owner at gunpoint less than three hours after arriving here. He was arrested after a witness followed him to a nearby department store.

Senate fails twice to override school aid veto

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The Illinois Senate failed today for a second time to override Gov. Daniel Walker's $116.7 million cuts in state aid to local schools.

In quick succession, votes were taken on Walker's $81 million cut in direct state aid to schools and on his $35.7 million reduction in grants for several special education programs.

Both votes fell short of the required majority of 30 in the 59-member Senate. The two vetoes had been overridden earlier in the House, and there had been intense pressure on senators to follow suit from a coalition of educators, labor unions and local officials.

A third vote was possible under legislative rules, but was considered unlikely. The action was an apparent victory for Gov. Daniel Walker, who had argued that an override would cause a state budget deficit and a need for a tax increase.

Woman bids for lieutenant governor nomination

CHICAGO (AP) — Joanne H. Alter, a trustee of the Chicago metropolitan sanitary district, announced Friday she will seek the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor.

Alter, 47, became the first Democrat to seek the party nod for the virtually powerless No. 2 spot in state government. Sheriff David O'Neal of St. Clair County has announced for the Republican nomination.

If elected, Mrs. Alter would be the first woman to hold a major statewide office.

Alter several times stopped short at a news conference of saying that she would pursue her candidacy if she fails to obtain the endorsement of the Democratic slatemaking committee dominated by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. She said she prefers to take up such problems "one step at a time."

Chemical defeats restocking of fish: specialist

CHICAGO (AP)—A dangerous pollutant is killing a $175 million effort to restock the Great Lakes, rendering fish unsafe to eat and unable to reproduce, a government specialist said Friday.

Samples of important game fish show the massive restocking program is being wrecked because of potentially harmful levels of the chemical PCB, said Nathaniel P. Reed, assistant secretary of the Interior.

"Nothing short of immediate drastic action will enable us to raise anything better than lakes full of eunuchized fish," Reed told a conference. "With the present preponderance of PCBs, the lifespan of the Great Lakes fishery will be limited to a single generation."

PCB is short for polychlorinated biphenyl, a hydrocarbon that had a number of industrial applications until the early 1970s when Monsanto Corp., the sole U.S. producer, began limiting its sales to the manufacturers of electrical transformers and capacitors.

Foundation denies suppressing U of I coal study

WASHINGTON (AP)—The National Science Foundation denied Friday that it had suppressed, directly or indirectly, a university research study on coal slurry pipelines.

The study by the University of Illinois' Center for Advanced Computation reportedly contradicts a study made for the government by the Bechtel Corp.

A Senate Interior subcommittee is conducting hearings to determine whether the Bechtel study, which concluded that slurry pipelines are considerably more economical than transporting coal by rail, constitutes a conflict-of-interest.

Earlier testimony brought out that a Bechtel subsidiary plans to construct a coal slurry pipeline between Wyoming and Arkansas.

Testifying before the subcommittee Friday, NSF officials said alleged attempts on the part of Bechtel to discredit the University of Illinois study played no role in their decision against renewed funding for the university study.

'Strip' declining to depths of decay

By Mike Walters and Gary Jaquet

Is business slowly slipping away from South Illinois Avenue? It has been evident for some time that Carbondale's central business district has lost some of its gloss.

The City of Carbondale does not have the answer. It keeps no figures on business transitions, said Director of the Division of Planning Phillip Baewer.

But one fact is clear: 10 per cent of the approximate 100 business sites along South Illinois Avenue from Mill Street to Main Street are vacant. Of the remaining businesses, more than half are student oriented.

About a fourth of the businesses along the avenue are restaurants or bars, and another fourth are "service" businesses, such as gas stations and barbershops. The remaining businesses are either student and recreation-oriented or are specialty stores.

Apparently conventional retail businesses are leaving "The Strip" for new locations in some of the city's outlying shopping centers or are simply closing their doors entirely.

"It's the same old story in every city in the U.S. They all want to get to outlying areas," said R.J. Brunner, owner of Brunner Office Supply and a Southern Illinois Avenue proprietor for 32 years.

Brunner blamed lack of adequate parking and litter problems on the flight of conventional retail establishments to University Mall, Eastgate, Westown and Murdale Shopping Centers.

George Sawyer, a 27-year-year South Illinois Avenue retailer who moved in June, also blamed parking and litter from bars for the district's transition.

"It just got to be such a hassle," Sawyer said. He said he was tired of combating complaints of lack of parking and litter problems from surrounding bars.

"We tried to keep it nice but couldn't keep up with it."

CCHS board shows lack of responsibility

By Jerie Jayne
Editorial Page Editor

The Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education, in its actions of the past few months, has shown a tremendous lack of responsibility and accountability.

Last month, the board members arbitrarily hired a photographer for the school yearbook, even though the Illinois State Code requires they solicit bids. Some board members admitted their ignorance of the law, but ignorance of the law has never been an acceptable excuse, especially for public officials.

At its Oct. 16 meeting, the board abruptly fired a library clerk because her job was not in the school district budget, yet, at the same meeting, rehired an athletic director whose job also was not budgeted. Their basis for this inconsistency was, as one board member put it, "He (the trainer) is a real bargain for the school because he is so qualified." In 1970, the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools told CCHS officials its library was understaffed. A 1974 evaluation said the CCHS library was understaffed professionally and clerically.

Yet, the board saw fit to fire an unbudgeted library clerk and hire an unbudgeted athletic trainer, who will only be used for organized male athletics.

The board's latest blunder was its decision to ask for the resignation of CCHS Business Manager Cecil Hollis. That decision was made in a closed session Oct. 16 and his letter of resignation was accepted by the board Nov. 6.

The legality of secretly asking for the resignation is open to interpretation. Illinois' vague Open Meetings statute says "final action" concerning dismissal of an employee must be made openly. Whether asking for Hollis' resignation constitutes a final action is uncertain.

But ethically, the board in this latest action has shown an incredible lack of public responsibility.

Ethics, or lack of them, has been a key factor in this series of irresponsible decisions by the board. To top things off, the board members at another closed session two weeks ago designated the board president, Robert Brewer, as the sole spokesman for the board on the Hollis matter.

Whatever happened to accountability? The board members were elected individually by the public. They have no right to assign an individual spokesperson to speak for the entire board. Brewer's reasoning for assigning a single spokesperson was that each board member would have a different account and that gives the appearance the board is inconsistent.

While school board members put in many hours of voluntary time, and receive little credit, they should not consider themselves an elite clique with no responsibility to the public.

Whether the board members intentionally withheld information is not important. They made it extremely difficult for the public to find out what really happened and ignored responsibility to the public. Their actions in the past several weeks are history and it is hoped board members will learn from their mistakes.

School reform needed

By Becky Barron
Student Writer

Reform is desperately needed in today's public schools. Students drudgingly slide through high school not realizing their own ignorance until college.

The National Association of Independent Schools reports that enrollment in private schools has steadily been increasing the last six years. Even more astounding is the growth rate of applicants in private schools.

Educators and parents are attributing the rise in popularity of the private school to the declining faith in the country's public school system.

Public schools, according to educators and parents, are viewed as dominated by unions interested only in protecting and helping teachers rather than pupils, by politicians who control budgets and by "education experts" who have taken over curriculums and school management.

Parents have concluded as a result that secondary schools are turning out ill-trained and emotionally unsettled young people who go onto college before discovering that they cannot read and write at expected levels.

A good example of this can be seen right here at SIU, where students (unless they can proficiency out) are required to take basic college algebra (107) and basic English composition (101 and 102).

Everything taught in these classes should have been ingrained deep in pupils' memory banks several years before entering the college level. Yet students still enter college writing sentence fragments and unable to multiply fractions.

Colleges and employers across the country complain that many high school graduates have achieved only the most elementary literacy.

California is in the process of alleviating this problem. Starting in December, 16 and 17-year-olds will be able to take the California high school proficiency examination. If they pass and have their parents consent, they may drop out of school.

However, the test is no cop out. To pass, students will have to demonstrate a solid ability to read, write and reason. The test is designed so that the average high school senior will barely be able to pass it.

Community colleges will be required to accept the proficiency certificate and it is hoped universities will do the same.

State senator, Arlen Gregorio, who first proposed the new system said, "While a high school diploma doesn't mean that a student can read, this certificate will at least assure that much."

California's next move will be to require every student to achieve a certain level of competence, together with a marketable skill, in order to get a diploma.

As usual, California is the first to change to a new idea. Illinois had better change fast also. Otherwise, there may not be anyone left literate enough to write the bill.

Systems and hernias don't mix

By Jim Santori
Student Writer

The system stinks! All the people involved in the system are in it for themselves! The little people never get a break...or so I thought before I tested the system in Carbondale.

The system is usually equated with governmental systems, or bureaucratic systems, or even heating systems, depending on your political persuasions.

In my case, I thought the system of justice in this country was bent toward business, and was there to support and protect its existence. And in Carbondale, since there is such a lack of anything large enough to be called big business, I picked on the automobile repair garages.

Granted this is taking things to an extreme but what can an out-of-date, has-been revolutionary pounce on when he's out of the big city?

But when I had problems with my car, and despite my fear of garage-mechanics as money suckers, I resolved to at least give them a try, and put the car at their mercy. My mistake.

A few weeks after a complete brake job, my little blue bomber started to act in a most peculiar way. I notified the garage who did the brake job (whom I will call Garage A) and was told the symptoms described were indicative of transmission trouble. Their technical gibberish had me snowed so I trusted their word and took the car to another garage whom I will call Garage B (oh, what a chicken I am).

Well, Garage B, after socking me with an astronomical bill, said that Garage A really screwed up the car. "We had to fix the watchamacallit because the gibberonilizer flattened the xylocoperater..." said the greasy, glop of goober grease.

Dazed, bewildered and slightly mad, I confronted Garage A with these charges and was immediately backed up against the wall with a barrage of excuses.

"Oh, no. Looky here. Garage B didn't even touch the trumblefunnel near the woogiewoosier. In fact, the xylonub which turns the mungelfunzi..." Hold it!! This was getting nowhere fast. So I decided to do the next best thing rather than try to get these two to resolve it themselves. I plotted. I'd get even by firebombing, or dynamiting the oil pits, or even heaving snow tires through plate glass windows. Whatever.

But then my wife convinced me to try the system. "It's better than getting a hernia heaving snow tires," she said. Sound reasoning, I thought, so I filed a complaint with the Consumer Protection representative, attorney Robert Schulhof.

After a few weeks, while sipping mint juleps, I received in the mail copies of two subpoenas delivered to Garages A and B and a request ("a request", mind you) that I show up as a witness against these two.

I was honored and prepared for battle but was soon disheartened when I heard that the owner of Garage A was a former bigwig in the old Navy and that Schulhof is a Lt. Commander in the Naval Reserves. Fine. I had pictures of these two keelhauling me for bringing a complaint against "such a fine, outstanding citizen as Mr. Garage A."

But the better half of me (my wife) pushed me out the door and shoved me into Schulhof's office where I waited in anticipation for the order to walk the plank.

But soon I realized King Solomon couldn't have done better. Schulhof, after hearing all three sides to the story, promptly chewed out the two parties at my sides. He found that they were wanting in legitimate excuses (and reputations) and ordered them to split the bill for the extra work and pay me.

Pay me?! I was stunned! Me, a little guy! I stood up and murmured something about blessing the king and reached for his hand to kiss his ring when I heard him start chewing me out for not observing precautions such as having the garage call before ordering any work to be done.

I accepted this discourse because I felt it was well deserved. Then I heard Schulhof say as I was leaving, "I hope you learned something."

I turned and said "Yeh, I learned the system works sometimes and that it's a lot easier than heaving snowtires." A more bewildered look on anyone's face I have never seen.

Short Shot

If the SIU football players had shown as much aggressiveness against opponents on the field as they did against a few disgruntled fans at last Saturday's game, they might have had a winning season.

Letters

An open letter to SIU President Warren Brandt

To the Daily Egyptian:

An open letter to Warren W. Brandt, President, SIU:

In the more than three years that I have been a student here at SIU, there are no occasions which stick out in my mind that I can point to and say that the people in Anthony Hall care about me as a person, a student or a member of this learning community outside of the classroom. The support, concern and encouragement I have experienced has been from my instructors and the departments with which I have been involved. And, to those people, I am grateful.

Behind the apathy on this campus is a tremendous feeling of futility—a feeling that a student's opinion makes little difference because it will be ignored anyway. Students seem to have little control over how student money is spent. Even if input is requested by some top-level administrators on this campus and the results are not to that administrator's liking, the information seems to be minimally considered, if not altogether ignored. Anthony Hall seems to feel that students are to be controlled, confined and appeased rather than dealt with as capable, rational, adult human beings.

In our library, in bright lights on the far wall as you enter, are four objectives that earlier men here at SIU felt were fundamental to this university's purpose. One of those objectives, in part, states: "To forward ideas and ideals...inspiring respect for others as for ourselves." Students on this campus command little respect from Anthony Hall. Recognition of students as people outside of the classroom seems mostly to be on the basis of dollars per unit which can be spent with seemingly little concern as to the wishes or quality of life of these "units".

The actions of top-level administrators pertaining to the "Deep Throat" controversy last week is a prime example of the level of support that students of SIU can rely on. I admit that legal grey areas played a significant role in the decision. Yet, I find it difficult to believe that if the University had supported the students with conviction that the outcome might not have been different. Legal precedents have been set in both directions on this issue.

And, is it not one of the main goals of the university to seek truth, to defend the right of individual choice in seeking that truth? Yet, this university reneged on its responsibility to the students of this university in the face of legal threats. And, with that decision, a part of the integrity of Southern Illinois University was lost. Men for all seasons, these are not!

The subject of this compromise of integrity are very significant. This decision indicates a backbone of gelatin where standing up for principle is concerned and an immense unwillingness to support the students of this university.

Brandt, as long as Anthony Hall exhibits such lack of concern and support for the students and ideals of this university, apathy and personal frustration will remain high. It seems sadly and regretfully true that on this campus the administrators get the gold mine and the students get the shaft.

Inaccurate article

To the Daily Egyptian:

Regarding an article in Thursday's Daily Egyptian about Alpha Epsilon Rho sponsoring the FCC 3rd phone test and study session—there was very little right with that article. It contained inaccurate quotes, false inferences and misinformation. I myself am a journalist, and I was always taught that a quote is a word-for-word account of what someone said, not what someone thought they said, or the way an editor wants an article to read, but a word-for-word account.

I was quoted as saying "We're holding the seminar with the test because only 20 percent of those taking the test are passing." What I really said was that approximately 20 percent of those taking the test do not pass Element 9, which is regarded as the most difficult part of the test. We are holding the seminar and test to give students and broadcasters in Southern Illinois a chance to take the test at an area near their home, to get some expert instruction, and in conjunction with our regional seminar.

I did not say that anyone going into radio broadcasting must take the test if they expect a job. More often than not, employers in radio broadcasting are requiring at least a 3rd phone license, which is quite different from they must have it. I did, however, stress the fact that persons going into radio will probably eventually need the license.

And, SIU is not the fourth University to hold a seminar like this, in fact, as far as I know, the only university. Other seminars have been held in Springfield and Indianapolis, sponsored by professional broadcasting organizations.

And, biggest of all, "a Federal Communications Commission seminar and license test" means nothing. Do you realize how many commercial exams the FCC prepares? The test and study session is for the Radiotelephone 3rd Class Operators Permit.

The worst thing of all is that I was interviewed before by a student in JRNL 311, and his story was complete and accurate. It was even turned in before Mr. Rice interviewed me, but no one saw fit to print a good article about the seminar.

Negative editorials hurt

To the Daily Egyptian:

In all probability the intent of Jim Ridings' column of Nov. 18 is respectable, but I begin to wonder why he is wasting his writing ability on pointing to Ford's personal slippage as an excuse for the world's problems. He states that a decade ago people were outraged at their present state of affairs and those of us today have "been beaten into an apathetic submission by the hopelessness of it all."

One is tempted to ask why he thinks people are supposedly like this when they become so dulled and constantly bombarded by negative editorials and cartoons and then given the excuse that Ford's human misfortunes is the cause for their problems.

When Nixon resigned many thought that our difficulties would be behind us, but I didn't notice the Dow-Jones Industrial Average hitting 1000, see gas prices drop or witness a greater availability of jobs. The public can read, and I for one see no reason why Ridings belabors a point and reaches conclusions that appear irrelevant to the rest of the article.

Interested observer at Board of Trustees meeting

To the Daily Egyptian:

This letter comes from the Illinois Education Association's higher education office and not from our local, the Faculty Organization for Collective Bargaining at Southern Illinois University, Edwardsville. I was an interested observer at the Board meeting on Nov. 13 and did not find your front page report a clear and accurate account of events.

Besides the shifting of the bargaining item to the last twenty minutes of the meeting, the crucial facts were two independent faculty organizations, the IEA and the AAUP, were presenting to the Board alternative routes to recognition of a collective bargaining agent. Board member Margaret Blackshire made a motion to work out the ground rules by the December session and thence to hold an election within 60 days. At this point, quite inappropriately Professor Donow, variously the President of the SIU Carbondale Senate and the American Federation of Teachers local on campus, jumped to his microphone without Chairman Elliott ruling him out-of-order, and read a resolution from Carbondale's senate that only brought confusion to the scene and discourteously gave Margaret Blackshire no chance to find a seconder for her motion. The chair used Donow's untimely intrusion to put an end to discussion and take the whole matter "under advisement."

It should be noted that the President of Edwardsville's University Senate vacated his seat while the independent organizations presented their cases and bargaining was discussed. Professor Donow's intrusion was neither diplomatic, helpful nor friendly. In view of earlier conversations with him about the Edwardsville situation, I can only judge his action as disingenuous. SIU Carbondale is a good 18 months behind Edwardsville's preparedness for bargaining. Professor Donow's entry into the discussion was singularly indelicate because of the traditional differences between interests on the two campuses and because on November 18 the State House may well override the governor's veto of the two separate trustee boards, making a new board automatically law. Professor Donow was not, nor had he asked to be, on the agenda at that controversial part of last week's meeting. We shall leave his motives to silence and surmise.

Ph.D. student receives appointment

Herbert K. Russell, doctoral candidate in the English Department, has been appointed as assistant to the director of the Illinois Humanities Council (IHC).

The council, which is part of the National Endowment for Humanities program, supports educational activities in the humanities for out-of-school adults, Russell said.

"Locally, we have set up a humanities program at the federal prison in Marion and have worked with community leaders in Cairo to set up a feeling of unity in that very splintered community," Russell said.

The programs typically are public forums involving people from humanities and interested civic leaders, he said. The aim is to instill a sense of value in communities and to foster a sense of understanding between academic humanists and the public, he said.

Russell said that the council welcomes proposals for programs from non-profit, non-partisan groups, organizations and institutions.

"The IHC has two primary guidelines in its consideration of proposals," he said. "Academic humanists must be involved in the planning and presentation of any project and the project must in some way concern a public policy issue such as (but not restricted to) education, criminal justice, environmental practices, services for the elderly or community planning."

He said he is looking for people to become program directors to submit proposals. Persons may call him at 457-7554 or 453-2466.

Renovation plans underway

Money has been allotted by the SIU Board of Trustees to begin planning for the renovation of Parkinson Lab. The building, nearly 50 years old, houses the geology department.

Plans for the renovation are underway with a tentative completion date set for March, 1976. Actual work should begin fall semester next year.

Parkinson Lab was constructed in 1928 at a cost of $23,000. It was named after a former SIU president and one of the school's founding fathers, Daniel Baldwin Parkinson. The school was then known as Southern Illinois Normal University, and occupied about 20 acres.

The building was constructed for the expanding science department on campus. When first used, it housed the physics and chemistry departments, along with industrial arts, the school museum and the University Book Store.

Daniel Parkinson served as the fifth president of SIU, from 1897 to 1913. Before that he had served as registrar, vice regent and was the original teacher in the physics and chemistry departments in 1874 when the school was founded.

Show schedules holiday program

"You're In Good Company", the Channel 8 variety show, will celebrate Thanksgiving with a special program at 9 p.m. Tuesday. Jane Heisler will prepare an entire Thanksgiving feast while her mother Arlene Heisler prepares holiday decorations for host Dave Terwische.

John Kurtz of the Radio-TV Department will read a Thanksgiving story. Outdoorsman Art Reid will also appear.

We Are Organizing A Press Council Are You Interested?

The Daily Egyptian plans to organize a Press Council and is currently seeking nominees to represent the various groups we attempt to serve. The council's broad purpose will be to improve communication and understanding between the newspaper and the University community.

Its major function will be to receive, investigate, and report on complaints about the newspaper's news reporting, editorial, and advertising performance. The Daily Egyptian plans to assist in every way possible and intends to publish the council's findings after complaints are investigated by the group.

The plans call for a nine-member council comprised of the following: three undergraduate students, one graduate student, two teaching faculty, one non-academic employee, one administrative and professional staff, and one representative from the Carbondale community.

In order to establish the organization, we are asking leaders and representatives of various campus constituencies to nominate persons they think could and would be interested in working with such a group.

The executive committee of the Daily Egyptian Policy and Review Board will select from the nominees the nine members of this initial council. The council will be independent of the newspaper, once it is established, and will be expected to formulate its own rules and procedures.

If you are interested in serving, or know someone who is, please fill out the form below and send it to us. Also please attach a short statement explaining your interest and background. This will greatly aid the selection committee.

Please act immediately as we plan to have the council organized and operating at the start of spring semester. We hope the Press Council will be a step toward providing the community with a better newspaper.

Merchants praise new shoplifting law

By Kenneth Pilarski
Student Writer

It's about time retail merchants got a law to help them curb shoplifting problems, say Carbondale merchants, who believe that the new Illinois retail theft law will prove to be an effective deterrent to shoplifting and related offenses.

The law, which went into effect last month makes store theft a Class Four felony carrying a one-to-three-year prison sentence for second offenders of theft under $150.

In addition to stealing, concealing, abandoning or knowingly depriving a merchant of use or payment for merchandise, the following are criminal offenses: switching price tags, transferring merchandise from one container to another and intentionally untagging and removing shopping carts from the premises.

Further more retailers now have the right to sue the parents of underage offenders involved in store theft for damages up to $500.

Merchants agreed that the law is needed and said they would not hesitate to prosecute offenders under this new law.

"It's about time we got a law with some teeth in it to help us curb the shoplifting problem," said Richard Dinga, assistant manager at Sears.

"We will prosecute anyone we catch stealing from our store, whether it is a 50-cent item or a $50 item," Dinga said. "There is no difference, stealing is stealing."

Jerry Boren, manager of Boren's IGA West, was not familiar with the law but said he was 100 per cent for it. "We've needed something like this for a long time," he said.

"Being located in a college town we do have a shoplifting problem," Boren said, "and I must say that we definitely will prosecute second offenders. As far as first offenders go, we rarely prosecute. It depends on the circumstances."

IGA West has little problem with shopping cart theft because of its carry out service for customers, Boren said.

"My first reaction to the law was will there be enough room in the jails," said Don Smith, owner of the Ben Franklin Variety Store.

"We have a large shoplifting problem and I believe the law will be very useful for us because we prosecute all persons caught shoplifting in our store," he said.

"I think this law will save retailers a lot of money once the judges start sentencing individual offenders," Smith said.

Former resident entered in contest for Bicentennial

A woman chosen as the most outstanding mother in Southern Illinois by the National Bicentennial Mother's Committee will compete with mothers from every other state during the Bicentennial celebration in Washington next year.

Gertrude Baggett Presley, the late mother of Wayman Presley of Makanda and Dartham, Herbert and Alfred of Carbondale, was chosen as the outstanding mother in the Southern Illinois district of 34 counties.

Mrs. Presley, or "Gertie," as she was called, lived in Carbondale prior to her death in 1933. She was born in Texas soon after the Civil War and grew up in Southern Illinois; an orphan since the age of six. She married a sharecropper and lived in a log house where she raised seven children.

Mrs. Presley has been cited for help in easing the tension between Union and Southern sympathizers, both of which were plentiful in Southern Illinois at that time. Several other inspiring phases of her life were also cited.

Club schedules party for author

An autograph party for the author of the just published travel book "Camper to Alaska" has been scheduled by the Herrin Women's Club from 10 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m. Saturday at the Walden Book Store, University Mall.

Speech faculty attend meeting

Six members of the SIU Speech Department attended the 1975 convention of the Illinois Speech and Theater Association, held Nov. 7 and 8 in St. Louis.

The purpose of the meeting was to provide secondary, junior college and senior college teachers the chance to share experiences, teaching methods, materials and research findings.

The theme of the convention was "A Time to Reflect, a Time to Assess, and a Time to Progress." The annual convention had sectional meetings in areas such as public speaking, radio and television, creative dramatics, debate and communication theory.

SIU Prof. R. Paul Hibbs, was the chairman of the keynote session, "Search for Identity." Richard Lanigan, assistant professor in speech, spoke on "The Discipline in Crisis—A Cause for Hope." He was also one of two persons to receive the association's outstanding service award, "Life Membership for Service to the Speech Discipline in Illinois."

Other speech department members that attended the convention were Janet McHughes, Elizabeth Norwood, Edward McGlone and Marvin Kleinau.

Department plans center dedication

The Southern Illinois Conservation Center, located two miles north of Benton on Ill. 37, will be dedicated on Dec. 5 with open house formalities, Tony Dean, director of the Department of Conservation, said.

"This conservation service center will be the realization of a new and rather unique approach to conservation management and services," said Dean.

The center, which will serve as a direct office of the Department of Conservation, will be dedicated with Department displays, demonstrations and a slide presentation.

The open house is scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m. with a press conference and ribbon cutting ceremony at 1:30 p.m.

The author, Rose Rowell of Energy, has published the book based on a daily diary she kept during her 1973 camping trip to Alaska.

Mrs. Robert Ferrari, women's club president, said the club is sponsoring the party because the book emphasizes family, life conservation and international relations, a focus of the women's club organization.

Rowell, a first-time author from Energy, traveled with her family and her son's family from Herrin through the western United States, up through Canada and cross Alaska through Anchorage and Fairbanks. Her book talks about panning for gold, encounters with the large Alaskan mosquitoes and rough roads. Also in the book is folklore, history and humor, she said. It is illustrated.

The book, distributed nationally by the Exposition Press of New York, was published Nov. 19, 1975. It is on sale at Walden Books.

Refreshments will be served at the autograph party.

Tankers get cooking with invitational

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Take a team with 10 former high school All-Americans. Add to that a perennial Big Eight contender. Add to that three more teams loaded with top individuals. Put them in Pulliam Pool and what do you have?

The answer is a lot of trouble for the swimming Salukis in the sixth annual Saluki Invitational beginning at 11 a.m. Saturday in Pulliam Pool.

SIU coach Bob Steele looks for his team's main competition to come from Cincinnati, the team with 10 former high school All-Americans, and Kansas, the Big Eight Power.

The other teams in the meet are Eastern Illinois, Illinois State and Eastern Kentucky.

"We have perhaps a little more quality," Steele said. "They (Cincinnati and Kansas) have a little more depth than we have."

"We seem to be stronger in distance freestyle and butterfly. They're stronger in the 50, 100 and 200 freestyle. Both Kansas and Cincinnati are stronger in the breaststroke," Steele said. "I hope we can score in the breaststroke."

Steele said only a second separates the three teams in the relay events.

Swimmers from each team have been placed in heats according to the times the coaches sent to Steele. The five fastest swimmers will be placed together in one heat, and the next fastest swimmers will be sent into another heat according to the times.

The person or team with the fastest time of all the heats in a particular event will be declared the winner.

The five relay events will be run in two heats, and most of the 13 individual events will be run in four heats.

"Right now I'd say the meet's a toss up between us, Cincinnati and Kansas," Steele said while he worked on figuring the seeding for the meet.

Steele emphasized that grouping the swimmers according to time and ability would add to the excitement of the meet because most of the swimmers' times are close together.

"With this kind of meet, it should be pretty easy to get excited about the competition," Steele said. "We would expect a lot of people at the meet itself, which should add to good performances."

Steele said the building would be SIU senior swimmer Jorge Delgado will be the top seed in three events in the sixth annual Saluki Invitational at Pulliam Pool Saturday. Six teams will be competing in the meet that begins at 11 a.m. Delgado is favored in the 200 yard freestyle, 400 yard individual medley and 200 yard butterfly. (Staff photo by Carl Wagner) cooled down to about 70 degrees so it will be comfortable for spectators.

Steele said every event should be a good race. "The only guy from our team that should have an easy swim will be Mike Salerno," he said about his junior backstroke.

"This will be the best meet we've ever had," Steele continued. "I would think we'll be able to beat all the meet records."

The meet begins at 11 a.m. with the 1,650 yard (mile) freestyle. Steele said SIU freshman Bryan Gadekan is the top seed in that event.

After a break following the mile, the meet will resume at 2 p.m. with the 400-yard medley relay. Steele said it is important to have good relays as first place in a relay is worth 32 points to the team.

Steele said the 50-yard freestyle race should be one of the most exciting races of the day. Five-tenths of a second separates the top five swimmers. That race is scheduled to begin at 2:51.

Besides Gadekan, other Salukis earning top seeds are: Jorge Delgado in 200-yard freestyle, 400-yard individual medley and 200-yard butterfly; Salerno in the 100- and 200-yard backstrokes and Greg Porter in the 100-yard butterfly and 200-yard individual medley.

Wrestlers close in on first meet

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

Thanksgiving turkey isn't going to weight down the Saluki wrestlers this holiday season.

Wrestling coach Linn Long says the team will be staying on campus next week wrestling every day, and on Thanksgiving, the squad will be eating at his house.

Even Thanksgiving day will be sandwiched between two wrestling practice sessions. Last year because the team was wrestling the Saturday after Thanksgiving, the meal was skimpy.

but Long says this year's feast will be more than ample.

Long's wrestling menu should be full and satisfying this season. Several veterans are back and the spots that are open have been filled with promising freshmen.

Long said several of the senior wrestlers have been providing good leadership for the preseason practice sessions. He named seniors Joe Goldsmith (126 pounds), Jim Horvath (167 pounds) and Mark Wiesen (177 pounds) as really working out in practice.

Other veterans back and helping out with the younger members are juniors

Clyde Ruffin (150 pounds), Jay Friedrich (158 pounds) and Tim Maday (158 pounds).

Of the lettermen, Wiesen had the best record on the 13-8-1 Salukis last year. He won 22 and lost 8 for a .733 average. Wiesen qualified for the nationals last year, but lost in the first round.

Other wrestlers and their win averages records are: Goldsmith, .667; Ruffin, .630; Horvath, .654; and Maday, .545.

It was a good recruiting year for the Salukis, according to Long. He said they got the replacements they needed. All of the new freshmen are state champions.

Illinois freshman counted on by Long are 118-pounder John Gross, Des Plaines, and 158-pounder Russ Zintak, Evergreen Park. Tom Vizzi is a 190-pounder from Fredericksburg, Va. Another newcomer is walk-on candidate Don Dowden, Springfield (134 pounds).

Long said the most difficult thing for these freshmen is coming from high schools where they were practically unbeatable and being whipped in practice.

"It sets them on their ear," said Long. The weakest area on the team is in the 142-pound category. Long said Ruffin wrestled that division last year, but he's put on weight. Ruffin is willing to lose weight to wrestle in that class, but Long isn't sure he can do it.

Another possibility Long said, was for 150-pounder Brian Castle to drop down.

"It's rough to go down from a weight, unless you have the mental discipline or motivation," Long pointed out. "We're in a phase now of ranking everybody on the team. We'll wrestle off in groups, and then we'll know what we can do."

The Salukis face a tough schedule this year. The first match of the year is a home dual meet with Oklahoma State, Dec. 4.

"Last year we beat them in two weights, we lost three close matches and fell on our back in one. They have experience where we don't, and where we have some experience, they have good wrestlers," Long said.

Long foresees a successful season, but he won't say how successful. Before the season starts, Long puts his prediction in an envelope, but he won't look at it until the schedule is complete.

Concord Triopia tops Princeville in 1A grid finals

NORMAL, Ill. (AP) — Jay Wessler's record-shattering performance, which included four touchdowns and 30 points Friday, powered Concord Triopia to the Class 1A Illinois High School football championship with a 36-6 victory over Princeville.

Wessler helped the Trojans wipe out the memory of a 13-8 loss to Flanagan in last year's championship game.

Wessler scored on runs of 61, 48, and seven yards, and also intercepted a pass and took it 37 yards for another touchdown.

The 5-foot-10, 175-pound junior also ran across three conversions and gained 216 yards in 20 carries.

His four touchdowns, total points and rushing yardage, set records in the tournament, inaugurated last year.

Triopia took command at the start, boosting its record to 13-0 as Princeville suffered its first loss against 12 triumphs.

The Trojans took the opening kickoff and marched 57 yards in 12 rushing plays with Wessler going across from the seven.

Princeville took the ensuing kickoff but was forced to punt and on the first play from scrimmage, Wessler raced 61 yards for a touchdown.

Princeville challenged the next time the Princes got the ball with quarterback Rob Butler completing passes of 13 yards to Kevin Emerick and 40 yards to Pete Haynes to the Triopia four-yard line.

Four plays later, the Princes surrendered the ball on the five-yard line before Concord moved 95 yards for another touchdown with Wessler carrying the final 48 yards.

Thirty seconds later, Wessler intercepted a Butler pass and went 37 yards to the end zone, aided by key block by Kent Aufferkamp.

Princeville avoided a shutout when Joe Allen scored on a two-yard run with 36 seconds left in the half. Triopia, which did not throw a pass except for a conversion attempt, scored the only touchdown of the second half on a 16-yard run by Scott Lovickamp in the fourth quarter.

Record scramble

Saluki quarterback Leonard Hopkins churns out another yard against Bowling Green. If Hopkins can produce 238 more yards against Lamar University Saturday he will break the SIU record for total offense, which was set by Brad Pancoast in 1971. It will be his last chance since Hopkins is a senior and this is the final game. (Staff photo by Jim Cook)
